About the Conference

Today there is a lot of research in various fields of languages and social sciences done in universities and autonomous research institutes in India. It is true that the research is a continuous process. But, considering the global ranking of Indian universities, it is clear that we are lagging behind in quality research. It has been seen that the number of scholars in various disciplines are conducting research in the field of languages and social sciences, which is increasing day by day. Along with this, many research projects are completed every year. Considering the condition of contemporary research, it is seen that the quantity of research is increased but the quality has gone down. Hence, the widening gap between quantity and quality is a matter of concern. What exactly are the reasons for this? In fact, to find out these reasons is the subject of research. Do the researchers today, have a mature view of study and the approach to the problems required for quality research? Is the today's research limited only for the sake of degree, qualification, salary increase, and CAS? Of course, not. That is why, it is important for all of us to discuss and to come together with some innovative ideas on this subject. In this conference, we will try to get the answer of the following questions- What should be the motivation for research in Language, Literature and Social Sciences? What should be its nature, scope and application? The topic must be discussed in detail with the view of informing those who are doing research or looking to do so in the future. We will be very happy if you join us to discuss the topic.
