About the workshop :

This Workshop will focus and discuss the issues regarding curriculum to be designed on Tribal Studies. What will be the extent of this course? Will it be on UG level or Post Graduate level? Or should it be a foundation course? Which are the issues regarding tribal development, must they be included in the syllabus? What must be ratio of historical aspects with modern needs to the students? We have to discuss these important issues in the Workshop. We know that the discussion on the issues and design of the syllabus is not possible in a day, we therefore request you to send your suggestion on bcud.gondwanauniversity@gmail.com which will help us to make this syllabus and will give the extra time to discuss. If you send the PDF material, it will make us comfortable to make copies and circulate among the participants. We also have arranged the facilities for the presentation. We hope that suggestion, recommendation which will be received in this Workshop will decide the direction of this course.

About Gondwana University, Gadchiroli:

Gondwana University, Gadchiroli is established on 27th September 2011 by government of Maharashtra for the Districts of Chandrapur and Gadchiroli, these districts are known for rich tribal heritage in the state. 38 percent of total population in the Gadchiroli District is Tribal while 17 percent of the Chandrapur districts population is Tribal. So far, this university is catering the quality education to the most tribal people in the state. Eduard Suess, a well known German Geographer has given the term 'Gondwanaland' to the word in 1861 on the basis of Gond People residing in this area. The same tribal people are residing in the university jurisdiction area even today. One of the major objectives of this university is to see the overall development of this tribal people.

Respected Sir/Madam,
It gives us immense pleasure to cordially invite and welcome you to participate in one day National Workshop on proposed curriculum on "Tribal Studies", which we intend to start soon in the Gondwana University campus. There are very few institutes and universities in the country which serve with 'tribal studies' curriculum. Gondwana University, Gadchiroli is located in the city of Gadchiroli, tribal district of Maharashtra. In the era of Globalization, Privatization and Industrialization, new issues regarding tribal's are appearing, tribals are facing the new challenges of their existence, erosion of culture and dialect, removal of their habitat, vanishing their livelihood etc. The universities can create awareness through the education and give a sustainable option for their development. We can raise the opportunities for the tribal development through quality education, and awareness. This workshop is an effort to design a syllabus of 'Tribal Studies' which will focus on the Tribal culture, literature, folk, forts, water management, forest management, forest rights, PESA act and tribal rights etc. We value your experience and believe that your inputs will make this syllabus appropriate for present needs. We request you to give your valuable inputs to make this curriculum instrumental.
