About Bhadravati

Bhadravati (formerly Bhandak) is a city and a Municipal Council in Chandrapur district in the state of Maharashtra, India. It lies 26 km from Chandrapur city and 130 km from Nagpur. Bhadravati is well connected by rail and road having located on state highway MH MSH 264 and Bhandak Railway Station. It is in the heart of industrialization with existence of several coal mines and thermal power plants. Bhadravati is privileged to have India's strategic Chanda Ordnance factory which is also a major employer in the region. Gavrala, a small hamlet near Bhadravati, has been excavated by the Department of Ancient Indian History, Culture and Archeology, Nagpur during 2006-07. They have unearthed fortifications of the Vakataka period. The City has 3000 years old Parsavnath Temple and Bhandak Temple

About SSCET

"SHRI SAI COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING & TECHNOLOGY" is institute designated for prominence in technical education and established in the year 2009 by the "Late M. D. Yergude Memorial, Shikshan Prasarak Mandal, Chandrapur (M.S.)". The Society was established in 1990 by the great visionary and our inspiration Hon'ble Dr. V. M. Yergude. A man with the burning desire to spread the Technical and Vocational Education in Rural and Tribal areas to face the global challenges and to sow the seed of equality, patriotism and social work in their hearts.

Our primary focus is "Global Thinking with Local Milking". The Chandrapur Region's development involving local resource thus resulting into win-win situation for all stakeholders is the fundamental approach of our Institute. The institute is headed by Principal Dr. J. F. Agrawal an eminent scholar, academician who joined the college with zeal to develop SSCET which is at a rural location with a team of young and dedicated faculty members and staff.
