

LL.B. (3 Years Course) (CBCS Pattern) Semester - IV
Course Code : UL34C03 - Administrative Law

P. Pages : 1

Time : Three Hours

GUG/S/23/12077

Max. Marks : 80

- Notes : 1. Attempt all questions.
2. Each question carries equal marks.

1. Define administrative law and discuss its development as a separate branch of law. Explain the various sources of administrative law and the role it plays in the modern welfare state.

OR

Discuss relationship between Administrative Law and Constitutional Law.

2. Discuss the doctrine of separation of powers and its relevance in the context of administrative law. Analyze the extent to which the doctrine is followed in the Indian Constitution and its implications on the functioning of administrative agencies.

OR

Explain the concept of rule of law and its significance in administrative law. Discuss the ways in which administrative law seeks to balance the requirements of efficient administration and the protection of individual rights.

3. Explain the concept of delegated legislation and its advantages and disadvantages. Discuss the constitutional validity of delegated legislation and the various safeguards that have been introduced to prevent its abuse.

OR

Explain the role of judicial review in the context of administrative law. Discuss the grounds on which administrative actions can be challenged before courts and the remedies available to aggrieved parties.

4. Discuss the principles of natural justice and their relevance in administrative law. Analyze the significance of the audi alteram partem and nemo judex in causa sua principles in ensuring fairness and justice in administrative decision-making.

OR

Describe the different types of administrative actions and the principles that govern them. Critically analyze the role of administrative discretion in decision-making and the checks and balances in place to prevent its misuse.

5. Discuss the effectiveness of the institution of Lokpal and Lokayukta in India in combating corruption and promoting transparency in administration.

OR

Analyze the role of administrative tribunals in the adjudication of disputes arising from administrative actions.
